OMAHA LIVE STOCK.

General. Union Stock Yards, 6 p. m. 1 Thursday, March 8, 1888. The receipts of cettle and hogs to-day were lighter than on yesterday, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy not having any trains in. The general tone of the market was steady on cattle and a shade lower on hogs.

The receipts of cattle to-day were liberal although not as heavy as on yesterday. The market was about steady on all grades, although at the close the feeling was some weaker, some salesmen contending that it was 5@10 cents lower. The general quality of the offerings to-day was fair, there being some very good native steers sold. The local demand was light, Hammond only taking one hundred and sixteen head, leaving the balance, three hundred and thirty-six head, with a single exception to be taken by shippers. To-day's receipts were nearly all taken at the close of the market. Cattle.

The receipts were fair and the general quality about on an average with those of some days previous. Until the present strike on the lines of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy is ended light receipts are looked for.

The market opened at a decline of five cents and closed steady with the opening with nearly everything taken, there being only a few head left over.

There were no recepts and nothing was doing on the market. In all probability the sheep market at this point will not amount to much until the Swift packing house resumes operations. There is at present a limited demand for good fat sheep for local use. Beyond this there is no market.

Mr. Dreyfus thinks that when the house is running at its fullest capacity that the effect on the cattle and sheep market will salutary.

The following reports to the Drovers' Journal of Chicago tends to show the situation regarding stock in the territory adjacent to this market:

One stockman from 'Lick, Wyoming, says: "Stock of all kinds (that is, horses, cattle and sheep) never looked better at this time of the year than they do now. There is no difficulty in finding plenty of good beef on the range and fat mutton in every flock of sheep. It presents quite a contrast to the outlook of the live stock interest in this country now and one year ago. To-day you can ride out on the range, and horses and cattle will curl their tails up over their backs and make a run much as they do in the summer time. One year ago in riding over the range if you saw any stock at all it was either a carcass or a ghost of what was once a bovine. It would take a terrible condition to withstand the elements. Hay is rather more plentiful than heretofore and brings $10 in market." A feeder, from Washington, Ia., says: "In regard to fat cattle, they are nearly all gone and I have a carload left; they are nice and smooth and will average about 1,400 lbs. and doing well. I think I will hold them for another strike. Most all of the fat hogs are gone. Stock hogs and brood sows are selling high. Feed seems to be rather more plenty than people expected it would be this spring. I fear some have fed too sparingly for the good of their stock. Washington county had a rather good crop of almost everything last summer except hay and potatoes, and some seem to have plenty of these. Stock of all kinds seems to be doing well considering their chance. I don't think the farmers of this county have much reason to complain except it should be on low prices on cattle, nal of Chicago tends to show the situation regarding stock in the territory adjacent to their chance. I don't think the farmers of this county have much reason to complain except it should be on low prices on cattle, but I 2on't think they will complain of this very long." Another writing from Pierson, Ia., remarks: "There are more cattle being fed here than ever before. Corn is plentiful and sells for 30@31c per bushel. Hay is from $2.50 to $3 per ton. Heavy hogs have mostly been shipped, and there is not as many light hogs as usual." A stockman from Keenesaw, Neb., writes: "Winter is still with us. Corn is scarce. Hay plenty; not much stock being fed. Am feeding 300 head of sheep. All stock appears to be healthy." Another from Linn Grove, Ia., says of the situation in his part of the country: "All the good cattle are pretty near gone in this part; there is a great number of young cattle. There are not many good fat hogs left, and there is disease in some parts here. There are but few sheep in this part. There are a good many good
